

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law has improved our private time at home. We are no longer bothered by any telemarketers at all. We used to get telemarketers calling several times each week. Then we would have to ask to be taken off their calling list. It all took much time away from our private time in our home. The Federal Government should leave us alone with an Indiana State Law that seems to be working just fine for us.

the importance of Indiana's law.
